

Workflow Management

Many organizations assume that information technologies will deliver effective workflow. This assumption is often mistaken. While modern technologies improve parts of the process, most computer systems installed in Health Care today do not address the hands-on delivery of care by professionals. Total workflow analysis provides broader support solutions to ensure that the front line staff are able to deliver quality care in these downsized times. Medirex uses proven team building methods to evaluate the current workflow and then, with front line teams, delivers solutions that are implemented successfully by these teams. The results are streamlined activities that deliver seamless, efficient service.
